NEW ZEALAND COAST

Bar/kitchen open 6 pm

Join us for another popular talk, eat a meal of fish, chips and snarlars, sip a glass of wine, and hear Raewyn talk about how development of many parts of our coast has transformed wild natural places into urbanised suburbs.

Our coast is central to the identity of Kiwis, but we need to save the unspoiled places left, as well as do better with development. The talk will be illustrated with many gorgeous photographs of the New Zealand coastline.

Raewyn is an environmental lawyer, researcher and senior policy analyst for the Environmental Defence Soc. Her latest book, Castles in the Sand, with many images by leading landscape photographer Craig Potton, will be on sale.
